LOCAL NEWS.

TUESDAY EVENING, APRIL 9.

Washington and this city, was arrested by the police and committed to joil to await an examination, on the charge of vagrancy, and for forging the name of General Fitzhugh Lee. His trial was set for 3 o'clock yesterday evening at which hour numerous spectators, and many of his friends, having collected in the Mayor's office, he was brought in by officer Webster, and placed in the dock. He is apparently near forty years of age, about five feet ten or eleven inches high, has light hair and whiskers, blue eyes, and an intellectual forchead, though a red and somewhat pitted face. He was dressed in a half worn suit of light colored clothes, wore a tall, light slouch hat, and india rubber shoes. He talked with remarkable fluency. At a little after three o'clock, Gen. Lee having withdrawn the charge of forgery, and stating that he merely wished the man restrained from assuming his name, Justice Moore, the acting Mayor, commenced the trial for vagrancy by examining as witnesses Gen. Lee, Major W. D. Corse, Geo. Wa-hington, and R. L. Wood, and in response to the question whether they knew the prisoner or not? Gen. Lee said that to his knowledge he had never seen him before; Mai. Corse said he knew him well; Mr. Washington also knew him; and Mr. Wood recognized him as the man who had been in his store on Saturday last. The prisoner being then told to make his statement, said, after thanking General Lee for withdrawing the charge of forgery, that the only reason he could assign for his conduct was that he had been tremendously under the influence of liquor; that while in that condition, as he passed a corner of the street on which some young men were standing, he heard one of them say, "there goes General Lee," and that the mania under which he was then laboring had induced him to announce himself as such. With reference to the forgery he said he would swear he had no recollection whatever. He was then asked why he had represented himself as Gen. Lee in Washington city? and replied that, "strange as it might seem, because, though a taller man than the General, and by no means as good looking, yet the same incident of mistaken identity had occurred there; that when in that city a day or two ago, he had been addressed as General Lee and had felicitated the parties so addressing him upon the conclusion of the war but not upon the manner of its termination.' As regarded the "charge of vagrancy, he said he was "the son of a gentleman of Virginia." and that, though himself poor indeed he was on his way from Frederick city to Frederickshurg, where he had a relation residing, who had a sufficiency for both. He was then asked if he had any money, or whether he had friends in this city from whom he eould borrow enough to carry him out of town? To which he replied that he was not possessed of a "sous," and that though in years gone by he had many friends in Alexandria, he supposed he had none now, but that, if released, he should hereafter consider liquor and himself as antagonistic, and would promise to relieve the' city, at once, of his presence. Justice Moore then discharged him, and gave him some money | the bulk of it to benevolent and religious asto help him on his way. He thanked the Justice heartily for his discharge, and for the gift, and bidding the spectators collectively goodbye, said, touching his hat to Mr. Washington,

ROBBERIES.-Late disclosures, in the case of a robbery here, show that we have some colored people living in quarters of the town remote from each other, and yet banding, together for the purpose of plunder-arranging what places are to be robbed-meeting at certain houses to accomplish their purpose-dividing the stolen goods-and then depositing their shares at their different houses. During the day they prowl about, and mark the scenes of their contemplated depredations, see the manner in which yards can be entered with the least fear of detection, &c., &c. It is gratifying to know that the persons implicated in these transactions, and other suspected characters, are all of them comparative strangers here; some of them, indeed, "vibrating" between Alexandria, Fredericksburg, and other places.

"good evening, sir, we have met before!"

strode out of the office with a dignified air, grace and gait.

RE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE CORN EX-CHANGE. - The leading merchants of the city, after consultation, have resolved, with almost entire unanimity, that, as a means which will tend as much as any other that can be devised, to the general improvement of this city, as a commercial mart, to re-establish and open the Corn Exchange, which has been closed since the commencement of the war. Preparations are in progress for the immediate execution of the above mentioned purpose, and a meeting will soon be called to perfect an organization.

RECOVERY .- The Lynchburg News says: "We are pleased to learn that the condition of Capt. Lynn, of the Orange road, who was so badly crushed between two cars, at Charlottesville. last week, is much improved, and it is believed now that he will recover."

EDUCATION.—It is said that application has been, or will be made, to the Trustees of the Peabody Education Fund in the South, for a portion of that fund, in aid of the Washington Free School, in this city. We hope the application may be successful.

CHARGE DISMISSED .-- The Grand Jury of the Criminal Court of Baltimore have dismissed the charge against Mr. Lawrence P. Bayne, formerly of this city, for assaulting on the street some weeks since, Mr. R. B. Bolling, of fine stock of GROCERIES, which we offer to this State.

THE STEAMER CYNTHIA. - The little steamer Cynthia, having been thoroughly overhauled and repaired at Hunter's Ship Yard, has again resumed her trips between Farmington and

THE ALEXANDRIA CANAL.—The feed gates to the Alexandria Canal, at Georgetown, were again opened this morning, and the water is now rapidly filling it. About thirty boats, from FESTUS AGAIN. -On Saturday last, a Cumberland, loaded with coal, are reported at man, generally known as "Festus," who Georgetown, awaiting resumption of navigation has of late been misbehaving in to enable them to reach this city. In consequence of the injuries sustained by the banks of the Canal from the continued influence of their exposure to the weather duting the occupacy of the Aqueduct by the Government, the increased amount of water it has now to confine may, and doubtless will, occasion other breaks than the one which occurred last week near the Four Mile Run, so that it need not be a matter of surprise should the water have to be drawn off again, in order to make other re-> determine. HONESTY BUT ILL REQUITED .- George P. Chapman, a colored porter, while taking some groceries aboard one of the Washington Ferry boats, this morning, found lying in the passage way, leading to the wharf, a pocker book, containing $65, which a gentleman, just ahead of him, had dropped. Instantly laying down his bundles, he ran after the looser of the money, and handing it to him, received, as a reward, one dollar. On returning to where he had laid his bundles he was surprised to find that somebody had stolen one of them, a package containing sugar.

MANASSAS GAP RAILROAD. -- The track on the Manassas Gap Railroad, under the supervision of Chief Engineer A. H. Johnson, is being relaid with as much speed as the force under his command will admit, and will be completed-provided the weather continues favorable-between Piedmont and Manassas Station prior to the assembling here of the meeting of the stockholders of the road, which is advertised to take place on Wednesday, the 24th instant.

EXCITEMENT. - Some excitement was created last night, between nine and ten o'clock, at the upper end of King street, by a chase in that locality, and arrest of a United States soldier, who, it was rumored, had just killed a man in the house of a person named Sillicks. Upon inquiring, however, it was found out that the only damage done was the blacking of an eye which had occurred in a drunken fight.

MEETING OF THE CITY COUNCIL. -There will be a regular meeting of the City Council to-night.

POLICE REPORT-MAYOR'S OFFICE. - Wm. Turby, for an assault on James McGuire, was | edge of the greatest importance to the single or committed for further examination. Patrick Caraher, for an assault on Mattie True, was fined and discharged.

WASHINGTON ITEMS. - The parade of the Fire Department came off yesterday according of the future husband or wife of the applicant, to programme, and the firemen were highly together with date of marriage, position in life, complimented upon their appearance, and the leading traits of character, &c. This is no humgood condition of their apparatus.
